The biggest stumbling-block in the way of self-government in Mexico is the vast horde of Indians in the public. They are ignorant, blood-thirsty and lazy. They would rather have war than peace. Mexico has 15,000,000 people, and of these less than 3,000,000 are white.

DRAMATIC SOCIETY TO GIVE PLAYS ON JUNE THE EIGHTH

Two Productions Will Be Given at Myers Theatre at That Time.— Club Held Last Session Monday.

The people of Janesville, who have been interested in the work and success of the Janesville Dramatic Society, organized last November, for the purpose of promoting dramatic interest in this city, will have the opportunity of witnessing two plays by the club on Monday evening, June eighth, at the Myers theatre. This date was decided upon last evening at the closing meeting of the club's first season.

Rehearsals have been held for some time on two plays, the names of which are to be announced later. Both plays are of a high class, and it will require a great deal of practice in acting, to stage them at all satisfactory to the audience. The club does not fear them in the least.

Tickets have been placed in the hands of the members of the club, and are to be sold by them for the present. At a later date, those tickets which have not been disposed of, will be placed in one of the stores in the city, for final disposal.

It is expected that the seat sale for the two plays will be large, and to avoid the rush at the last moment, it will be far better to purchase early. The members are anxious to have the club's first season a success, and are determined that the acting will be more than another work. The club has exceptional talent and is just now fitting up its costumes for the various parts. Mrs. Day, who is directing the club, declares that she will have nothing but the best kind of work carried out by the club.

The club held its final meeting of the season last evening, which was very enthusiastic. A reading of "The Skinner" was read by Miss Louise Merrill, and it dealt with Skinner as he is today, on the professional stage.

A plan to have a picnic within a couple of weeks, was brought up and is being favored by the majority of the members. An outline in brief was given on the work to be taken up next winter. The club will hold their first meeting in September.

It is surprising to note the success the club has experienced in the six months it has been organized. If the members stick together, next season should be a model year for dramatic art in Janesville.

HIDE GEMS IN YOUR HEEL

A Safe Deposit for Valuables or Jewels Incorporated in the Shoe.

The feminine stocking has been christened "the first national bank," because of the marked preference shown by the ladies to keeping their money hidden away under the garter, and now a safe deposit vault for her jewels has been created in the heel of her shoe. This idea has been recently covered with a patent granted to a Western man, who entrance to this safe deposit vault is through the interior of the shoe. The shoe is guarded by a time lock or such a combination lock, but it is not.

JEWELS STORED IN THE HEEL

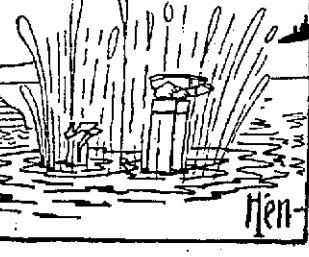

effectually concealed beneath the inner sole. The recess formed in the heel is of sufficient proportions to accommodate several rings and jewels of a similar nature. It is not at all likely that one would become separated from their shoes, and a thief searching for plunder would not be likely to scan the interior of a shoe for anything of value. It seems, therefore, that this would be a pretty good place for secreting such articles.

NEW FREEDOM POLICY IS NOT WORKING OUT

Wilson's Scheme Is Proving Very Unsatisfactory, Says Winfield Jones. Many Out of Work.

By Winfield Jones.

Washington, D. C., May 5.—President Wilson's "New Freedom" does not seem to be working very well.

Under the "New Freedom" working men by hundreds of thousands are out of work, capital is timid, farmers are suffering from competition of European agriculturists, manufacturers have curtailed their outputs, banks do not extend credit as readily as before, all business and industry is on the decline.

The "New Freedom," an academic theory by an inexperienced Princeton professor, is not what it is "cracked up to be."

Orden L. Mills, one of the best known of the New York business men, in a recent address surveyed the work of the administration of the country's affairs during the last year under Democratic rule. On the subject of the tariff Mr. Mills said:

"This brings us to the crowning achievement of the new freedom—the tariff act of 1913. It does not go as far as the radicals wanted, but as far as the tariff is concerned, in fairness it must be admitted, however, to furnish a test of the soundness or Democratic economics."

The argument advanced in favor of the economic principles of low schedules was not any fine spun theory taken from the textbooks of political economists, but the very specific and relevant assertion that a low tariff would reduce the cost of living and would be a stimulus to American industries.

It was idle for us to tell the people that the tariff could not and did not cause a rise in the cost of living, which was world-wide. The Democratic statesmen did not hesitate; they made no reservation. Elect the tariff and high prices both. Let them now make good. There must be no hedging or side-stepping. The Democracy made a definite promise. It has broken its pledge.

But, worse than their broken pledges, they have fulfilled our best and truest fears and made us true prophets at the expense of the country. At the risk of being branded a calamity howler, let me submit for your consideration a few significant figures.

During the first four months of the new tariff there were imported $47,000,000 of raw materials for manufacturing purposes and $5,000,000, or 10 per cent more of finished articles, showing conclusively that the much advertised advantage which our manufacturers were to derive from free raw material had no basis, in fact, when they were subjected at the same time to free competition in the finished product.

In wool alone the increase in manufacturing has been $3,200,000 and in wool clothes and dresses $2,000,000, or the product of about 15,000 wage earners. And yet we wonder at the number of unemployed.

During the same period the imports of farm products have increased $40,000,000 without, as we have seen, reducing the cost of living, but increasing to that extent the purchasing power of the American farmer.

What of the growing promises made to the business men of the country by amendment of the Sherman law? To only thing we have had was a presidential campaign of faultless rhetoric, which, when sound and sense, definite laws, called for such hostile join in, as and with their seven foolish sisters, but still in the lap of their Democratic midwife. Peace to their souls.

In the meantime, what has happened? Capital is timid and hesitating, conservatism and retrenchment are widespread, while initiative seems dead, earnings and dividends are small, new enterprises are shelved, payrolls are docked and working forces reduced.

Joubert, the great maker of exquisite epigrams, wrote many on friendship. As he was a man of many friends, and never lost one, his wise sayings may be taken as the flowers of his experience. One of the best of them is: "When my friend is blind in one eye, I look at him in profile." If we keep this suggestion in mind, perhaps we shall make and keep friends as Joubert did.

All is not peace as yet in Chicago baseball circles. The little disturbances that brought about the removal of C. W. Webb, Murphy were thought to have been thoroughly settled and Governor Tener assured the press that it would be smooth sailing from that point on. It soon appeared, though, that Charles Thomas, Murphy's successor, wasn't much more of a hit with the fans than Murphy. Still another Charlie—i. e. Taft, the real owner, it is alleged—came in for considerable criticism. Do what they may the present owners and directors of the Cubs are in wrong with the fans and the rumor grows daily more insistent that there will have to be a complete change in the ownership of the Chicago National club before the fans will be satisfied. The attendance thus far this season has been well below what it should be and the fans are taking every means of showing their disesteem for the Cubs. Some of the or later there will be some sort of a blowup in Chicago, insist the keen observers.

Willie Ritchie has tied a can to Harry Foley, his manager, and from now on his affairs will be looked after by his brother. Just which it is not clear, as he has several. At any rate, Willie's idea is good, it's the money end that interests him—which it is. He was paying Foley a salary and he finally came to see that he might as well keep the money in the family. This is all well and good, especially as it is known that Willie wants to get all the change out of the fight game that he can. However, there will be many a hoot and holler from fight fans and promoters when they hear of this deal. It will look rather cheap for a champion of most of them. And it isn't unlikely that what Willie will gain by keeping the money in the family he will lose in other ways.

The middleweight title is a large enough question as matters stand. Al McCoy having knocked out Geo. Chip with one wallop, claims to be the champ. But Chip didn't have the title sewed up safely should Billie Murray put the rollers under McCoy when they meet in a week or so in Gotham there will be a pretty pickle. Murray will claim the belt, but there will be a host of angry claimants. It would be a favor to the game if some one would offer a real belt and a nice piece of change and start all the pretenders after it anew.

It is being bruited about in Paris that the authorities may yet step in and call a halt to the Jackson-Moran fight there in June. Lil' Artha is certainly getting to be the man without a country.

Already there has been some little alarm because Walter Johnson has lost two games. Why fret over the matter, he may lose yet another before the season's over.

NATIONALS TRIM MILTON JUNCTION CRESCENT NINE

In the game played Sunday afternoon between the Janesville Nationals and the Milton Junction Crescents baseball nines, the former won 12 to 9, in a one-sided, hitting contest. The National slugged the ball for 15 swats, while Cassidy held the Junction stars to four safeties. The Nationals are a fast bunch of young ball players, and should be one of the Bower City's winning aggregations on the diamond this season. The lineups and score of the game Sunday follows:

Nationals—Kenning, c; Cassidy, p; Kober, ss; Cutts, 1b; Denning, 2b; Groat, 3b; Ryan, lf; Skelly, rf; Foley, cf.

Crescents—J. Coone, c; McKullepe, p; D. Coone, ss; McKullop, 1b; Ashton, 2b; Johnston, 3b; Mullen, lf; Gort, rf; Mullen, cf.

The game was marred by errors, 14 being chalked up against the Junction men, while the Nationals muffed seven times. Cassidy struck out 12 men and McKullop, 9. The Nationals issue a challenge to any team in this section of the state whose players are under 15 years of age.

Stars, 13; Giants, 11.

The Fourth Ward Stars and the Spring Brook Giants furnished a good game of ball Sunday afternoon at the Caloric diamond, the former winning in a slugfest, 13 to 11. Bidwell, on the mound for the winners, struck out 13 men. Bicknell, for the losers, scored a home run. Next Sunday, May 10th, the Stars play the Beloit Colliers. The Eagles at Beloit. The lineups for the game last Sunday follow:

Stars—Spohn, c; Bidwell, p; Miller, ss; Sennett, 1b; Marshall, 2b; Hell, 3b; Roberts, lf; Shumar, cf; Selgren, rf.

Giants—Kakuske, c; Bicknell, p; Cronin, ss; Fulerton, 1b; Viney, 2b; Brummond, 3b; Laffer, lf; Took, rf; Ganon, cf.

World's Debt to Humphrey Davy.

Humphrey Davy, a poor apprentice to a country chemist, was born at Penzance, England, 1778. He became the most eminent scientist of his day. He made the safety lamps now used in coal mines. And just before his death in 1829 gave us the electric light. Davy made his first experiments in candle light. Today the light known as Barmat light, off the New Jersey coast, is equal to 30,000,000 candles.

That Connie Mack's Athletics are not now in first place is probably due to the fact that his pitchers haven't warmed up yet. Bender and Plank aren't in condition, perhaps due to the cold weather. Coombs is still out of the game. Houck, Brown and Bush aren't doing quite so well as they did last year. Bob Shawkey and Herb Pennock are the only coil twirlers to show pleasing form.

5,918,000 gallons Polarine sold last year
1,536,232 gallons more than in 1912

The constantly increasing use of POLARINE by thousands of motorists is indisputable evidence of its lubricating efficiency.

It affords perfect lubrication to all makes and types of motor cars, motor trucks, motorcycles and motor boats.

POLARINE maintains the correct lubricating body at any motor speed or temperature.

Polarine
FRICTION REDUCING MOTOR OIL

POLARINE remains liquid at zero. POLARINE differs from all other makes of motor oils, in that it furnishes perfect lubrication to friction surfaces at extremes of temperature.

These essential characteristics obviate the necessity of changing oil for summer and winter lubrication—also the necessity of mixing kerosene, graphite and other injurious products with unsuitable and poor cold-test oil for the purpose of making it feed in winter weather.

TWO WILLS FILED IN JULIA MYERS ESTATE

LAST DOCUMENT PRESENTED LEAVES ENTIRE ESTATE TO PETER L. MYERS.

CAUSES COMPLICATION

Former Will Left Everything to Miss Katherine Myers.—Both Are Presented for Consideration of Court.

What promises to present serious complication in the settlement of the estate of the late Julia Myers, appeared in the probate court this morning when the fact was made known that two wills had been filed claiming the estate. One drawn in 1905 left all the real and personal property to Miss Katherine Myers, and the second, drawn in 1907, left the real estate and personal property to Peter L. Myers. In view of the fact that an action is now pending in the courts, brought by Miss Myers against Peter L. Myers, to recover principal and interest on a note which the plaintiff alleges is in her possession, the dispute that has arisen over the discovery of two wills being in existence will most seriously complicate matters. The will which was scheduled for hearing at the present term of the probate court was filed on April 7th and was drawn on November 11, 1905. According to the terms of this testament the entire estate of Mrs. Myers, both real and personal property, is bequeathed to her daughter, Katherine Myers, who is also made executrix. The second will was filed at the county court on April 14th and was drawn on July 6, 1907. Under its provisions Mrs. Myers left her entire property to her son, Peter L. Myers, the possible contentions and claims of other heirs being taken into consideration with the statement that she retained that they had received their share of the property from her husband, the late Peter L. Myers, during his lifetime. John L. Fisher is attorney for Miss Myers and Jeffries, Mout, Oestreich and Avery represent Peter L. Myers, the rival claimant to the property. The second will, owing to the fact that it was not placed on the May calendar of the county court, will be up for hearing at the June term which opens June 2. Up to late hour of the afternoon the case had not been brought before the court but it was probable that it would be set over to a later date during the present term.

JUDGE GRIMM OPENS STRAW HAT SEASON

Wears Panama Top-Piece on May 4th and is Ready to Defy Rain, Wind and Snow.
Spring has come, summer is here and the straw hat season has arrived. No less an authority than Judge George Grimm of Jefferson, presiding over the circuit courts in Rock, Green and Jefferson counties, has proclaimed by wearing his last year's Panama on May 4 on the streets of Janesville. "It's time to get out the straws," the judge told his friends who were ready with jibes with reference to the summery top-piece. "I'm ready to defy rain, wind and snow. I usually go to Milwaukee and open the season for them there, but this year I'll give the honors to Janesville." Persons who fear that their last year's straws are not presentable need not be alarmed if it is early, because handbags are already stocked up for the season and the judges have played them in the window yet, but they are ready for all comers," said Judge Grimm. "This is my last year's hat, but I bought one in Milwaukee last week Janesville merchants are just as progressive."

Of Gardens.
God Almighty planted a garden; and indeed it is the purest of human pleasures. It is the greatest refreshment to the spirit of man, without which buildings and palaces are but gross handiwork. An effort will be made to have "old glory" fly from all the public buildings and the council may take further action for observing the date. The letter was as follows: "The 100th anniversary of the birth of the 'Star Spangled Banner' will be celebrated in Janesville. Both these events were made possible by the successful defense of Baltimore against the British, and that they may be fittingly commemorated, we will hold from September 6th to 13th, a celebration that will excel all others of like character. For more than a year, the citizens of Janesville have been working diligently to complete plans that are in keeping with the high dignity of the anniversary. Thousands from all sections will come to Janesville to pay homage to the author and the song that has failed to thrill with pride the heart of every loyal American. "But while this gathering will be great in numbers, throughout the city there will be millions who will not be able to come. It is only proper, therefore, that some steps should be taken to make them feel that they have a part in the great national celebration. It seems to me that no better method could be adopted to bring this about than to have the national standard, the 'Stars and Stripes,' flying over every public building, business institution and residence in every city during the entire celebration. To you, the chief executive of your city, I appeal for co-operation, and feel sure that the general use of the American flag during Centennial Week will not only bring to the minds of the people the strength, purity and loyalty of which the 'Heaven-born Banner' is the emblem."

CHURCH OF FORMER JANESVILLE PASTOR DESTROYED BY FIRE

Dr. Edward Pence's Church in Detroit Suffers Loss of Fifty Thousand Dollars.

On April 22nd the Fort Street Presbyterian church of Detroit suffered a loss by fire amounting to some fifty thousand dollars. The Janesville people will be interested in the fire from the fact that Reverend Edward H. Pence, a former Janesville pastor, is in charge of the church, which is one of the largest and most prominent in Detroit. The first church was destroyed in 1853, and was burned to the ground in 1876, when the present structure was erected. Seventeen thousand five hundred dollars had recently been expended in interior decorations, and it was one of the show places of the city. The fire started in one of the towers, and some twenty-three persons, including firemen, were nearly killed when the tall spire fell. It was covered by insurance.

WOMAN SAVED FROM SUICIDE IN RIVER MONDAY AFTERNOON

Lillian Cook Apparently Under Influence of Drug Attempts to Drown Self in River.

Lillian Cook, who is under commitment sentence for statutory charges for a period of six months, attempted to commit suicide by drowning last evening shortly before seven o'clock in the river about a mile up North Bluff street. She was saved by Frank Smith, residing at 1040 North Bluff street, whose attention was attracted by her unusual conduct. She was then walking straight into the river. As the water was not of sufficient depth for her to go under without her feet coming out, she was pulled out before she had an opportunity to carry out her intention. She was taken to the Strunz home and later, to the county jail where she still declared that she would kill herself. The act was thought to have been the outcome of her losing property at Indian Ford in an attempt to fight her case in court. She was paroled out to L. A. Crosby on a farm six miles east of the city to serve the term and yesterday came to Janesville to dispose of her household goods that were in the house on North Bluff street. This place was raided by the police and was found to contain "Stew" McConnell were arrested. At the county jail the woman appeared under the influence of drug and after being kept at the jail over night, was taken to the Crosby farm. The woman told Sheriff C. S. White that she would rather die than be a subject of the "peon" law, meaning Mexican slavery as under the commitment law. The act was found on the woman's coat which she discarded before attempting suicide, stating "I am innocent."

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., May 5.—A force of about forty men is now at work on the spring planting on the permanent state forest reserves. State Forester E. M. Griffith said today that there were approximately 1,854,000 trees in the Trout Lake nursery suitable for planting out in the field or for transplanting in the nursery, besides a large amount of seedling stock. The output of the Trout Lake Nursery will be largely used in state work, while the output of the Tomahawk Lake nursery will be used to supply the needs of private plantations. The transplanting work in the latter nursery will finish work to the patients of the state camp for convalescent consumptives, which was provided for by the last legislature.

FEATHER'S CHANGING ANGLE

An Ornament older for Women's Hats Holds Trimming at Any Tilt.

The fickle goddess of fashion which decrees the fate of the feather on a woman's hat must stand erect and at the greatest possible height may tomorrow order that its angle must be dropped so that it is flat, may then place the same who sits behind her in the street car. An ornament holder for women's hats which has been recently patented, provides for any of these demands and offers a means of securing the feather or other piece of feminine millinery decoration at any tilt that fashion may decree. The device consists of two parts joined together so that they may be placed and held at any relative position with regard to each other. One part is secured to the hat and the other holds the feather or other trimming and is placed above it, so that it may be placed in any desired position, without removal of the hat or the trimming.

CELEBRATED GREEK PRIEST OFFICIATED AT WEDDING TODAY

Rev. Damianos A. Hermogenes of Milwaukee United in Marriage Assyrian Couple at One O'Clock.

At one o'clock this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Anna Shwery, 528 Cook street, a Greek priest of renown, in which James Shwery, a son of Mrs. Anna Shwery, of this city, was united in marriage to Miss Mary Adamany, daughter of Michael Adamany, also of this city. Coming to this country a year ago, he has made his home in Milwaukee, and has been instrumental in advancing many educational projects of note.

TO START AUSTRALIAN BUILDING AT ONCE.

San Francisco, May 5.—C. J. "Because Australia," said Oakshott, "has ambitious plans for participation it is possible that an application will be made for a larger building site than that which has been allotted to us, it is possible that a little delay will occur in carrying out our plans. In the end, however, it will give us a chance to make a better showing." Oakshott promised, however, to have the building completed several months before the scheduled opening of the exposition.

Of the 1,854,000 trees available for use this spring, about 600,000 will be planted on the permanent forest reserve, 200,000 will be transplanted in the new Tomahawk nursery, about 450,000 will be used on the four state parks and several thousand will be sold to private planters. The output of the Trout Lake Nursery will be largely used in state work, while the output of the Tomahawk Lake nursery will be used to supply the needs of private plantations. The transplanting work in the latter nursery will finish work to the patients of the state camp for convalescent consumptives, which was provided for by the last legislature.

BIG BEAR CREEK RESERVOIR DAM BLOWN UP TODAY

Eau Claire, Wis., May 5.—A large reservoir dam on Big Bear creek was blown up by dynamite Monday night. The guilty parties are not known. It is thought, however, that the dam was blown up by the state, as there has been considerable ill feeling regarding the dam, which has cut the water so high in the creek that it has flooded the vicinity.

FEATHER'S CHANGING ANGLE

An Ornament older for Women's Hats Holds Trimming at Any Tilt.

The fickle goddess of fashion which decrees the fate of the feather on a woman's hat must stand erect and at the greatest possible height may tomorrow order that its angle must be dropped so that it is flat, may then place the same who sits behind her in the street car. An ornament holder for women's hats which has been recently patented, provides for any of these demands and offers a means of securing the feather or other piece of feminine millinery decoration at any tilt that fashion may decree. The device consists of two parts joined together so that they may be placed and held at any relative position with regard to each other. One part is secured to the hat and the other holds the feather or other trimming and is placed above it, so that it may be placed in any desired position, without removal of the hat or the trimming.

CELEBRATED GREEK PRIEST OFFICIATED AT WEDDING TODAY

Rev. Damianos A. Hermogenes of Milwaukee United in Marriage Assyrian Couple at One O'Clock.

At one o'clock this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Anna Shwery, 528 Cook street, a Greek priest of renown, in which James Shwery, a son of Mrs. Anna Shwery, of this city, was united in marriage to Miss Mary Adamany, daughter of Michael Adamany, also of this city. The bride and groom are both well known in the city, having lived here for many years. Mr. Shwery is employed at the Parker Pen Company. The ceremony was held according to the Greek custom, and was attended by many friends of the happy couple. Abraham Adamany, a cousin of the bride, and Miss Maude Shwery, the groom's sister, acted as bridesmaid and best man. The fact that Rev. Hermogenes officiated at the wedding, makes it even more significant. The priest is one of the foremost educators in the world, having completely changed the attitude of the peoples of southern Africa from barbarism to civilization in recent years. Coming to this country a year ago, he has made his home in Milwaukee, and has been instrumental in advancing many educational projects of note.

TO START AUSTRALIAN BUILDING AT ONCE.

San Francisco, May 5.—C. J. Oakshott, official architect for the British colonies, is in San Francisco to begin arrangements for the construction of the Australian building on the grounds of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. "Because Australia," said Oakshott, "has ambitious plans for participation it is possible that an application will be made for a larger building site than that which has been allotted to us, it is possible that a little delay will occur in carrying out our plans. In the end, however, it will give us a chance to make a better showing." Oakshott promised, however, to have the building completed several months before the scheduled opening of the exposition.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

ALMOST UNBELIEVABLE.

I have been reading a story in a magazine about a child whose parents died in his infancy, and whose sister sacrificed her whole life to bring him up and give him a good education, and who repaid that sacrifice by being in luxury while his sister, a sickly old woman, slaved in a department store, and you would probably think the characters and incidents over the top and not true to life, wouldn't you?

In this community, writes a letter friend from a distant city, "about 10 years ago a baby was left to the care of his older sister when his parents died. The sister sacrificed her whole life for him, giving him a good education."

He married and his wife turned him completely against his sister. The girl he married was very poor, but now they have a summer home, a touring car, short, every luxury that money can buy. While the sister can be seen almost any day going back and forth to work when she is able, and often when she is not (her health is extremely poor). She is very proud and one of the most respectable and estimable women in this city.

Her brother, from one year's end to another does not give her a single penny while his wife spends in the most extravagant way. He has a bridge club enough to make it unnecessary for the older woman to go out these terrible winter mornings at her time of life.

I call it a crying shame. Of course it's right that her brother should give his wife and family all the necessities and all the luxuries he can afford, but he surely ought to be able to give his sister (his parent's mind) enough so that she wouldn't have to work even when she is sick to keep from starving.

A story like that make one's blood boil. It seems worse than the ordinary case because it was a sister instead of a parent. Parents in bringing children into the world incur the responsibility of rearing them. That is normal. But for a young woman to give her life and probably her personal happiness and her opportunity for marriage and children of her own, to rearing another woman's child, even if her brother is a far greater sacrifice and deserves even greater reward.

And the wife who turned her husband's heart away from this more than is proportionately even more guilty than the wife who tries to turn her husband against his mother.

Why will women do it any way? Why will women who otherwise seem gentle and tender hearted, deliberately try to shut their husbands' parents out of their life?

There certainly cannot be an utter jealousy than that which will make a woman unwilling to share her husband with the woman who bore him. Let her beware. Let her remember the warning of Cardinal Newman: "Some women when they marry are not content to be sweetheart and wife, but must also take the place of mother and sisters too, but let the woman who closes a man's heart against those of his own blood remember that some day the one door she has left open is sure to slam in her own face."

Heart and Home Problems

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a lady of fifteen. Am I too young to go out at night with boys? Is there any harm in dancing? Would like to learn to dance but my parents object.

(2) Have been going with a young man off and on for about two years. Everything was going on as he was right there to take me. He is a good boy in every way. My parents do not want me to go with him just because he is a Catholic. Tell me what is best to do.

(3) How do you clean velvet shoes? Please give me a good champagne recipe.

BLACK EYED SUSAN. (4) You are too young to be out alone with boys at night. An older member of your family should be with you.

(5) Some people object to dancing. I have never seen any harm in respectable dancing among respectable people. However, if your parents object to their objections, why you are in their care and being supervised by them.

(6) Perhaps your parents have a better reason which they do not tell you. You are just a little girl, you are not a woman, and it is better to heed what father and mother think is best for you.

(7) Brush them well to get out all the dirt. Then have a teakettle of water and hold the shoe over the steam and the steam will go inside the shoe. This will raise the nap of the velvet and freshen it.

(8) Chocolate Pie—Line the plate with a layer of butter. Beat four eggs and add sugar and yolks two by two, and beat together. Thicken with one heaping teaspoonful of cornstarch and add with a little milk one square of two tablespoonfuls of chocolate; add this and one tablespoonful of butter to the custard. Pour this into the baked crust. Make a meringue of the white of the eggs with four tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar and one-half teaspoonful of vanilla extract; spread this over the pie and brown in the oven.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Would you please tell me what is good for a red nose? I always have a red nose, no matter where I am, in the house or outdoors. People don't like to go outdoors. People don't like to go outdoors. People don't like to go outdoors.

A red nose may come from tight clothing. If your corset or collar-band or shoes are too tight make them looser at once. Sometimes eating highly spiced sauces will affect the nose, and a poor digestion may cause it. Sometimes a skin disease, such as eczema, will reddens the nose and sometimes a red nose shows a tendency to heart disease.

I would suggest, for outward treatment, that you pat with hazel on the nose several times a day, and dust the nose frequently with a little talc or fine powder—get the best, which is expensive. This, however, will not remove the cause, inspect yourself thoroughly and when you have found the trouble, the cure will probably be easy.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl sixteen years old. My mother is dead. I live with my brother and his wife and they don't treat me right. What would you do if I have a friend who is married and she wants me to come and stay with her. Would you go? I am not happy here. I want to go somewhere. Please give me some good advice.

VERY tomorrow has two hundred. We may choose which one we shall grasp, doubt of indecision or decision, success or failure.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

Macaroni and Oysters.—Boil a half package of macaroni in salted water until tender. Butter a baking dish and put a layer of the cooked macaroni, then a layer of oysters. Sprinkle lightly with salt and a bit of grated cheese; add another light layer of macaroni, cover with cheese and well buttered crumbs, and bake until the crumbs are brown. Add a cup of this white sauce to the dish before the crumbs are added.

Oatmeal Bread.—Take two cups of oatmeal, half a cup of molasses, two teaspoonfuls of salt, and pour over this a pint of boiling water. Let cool, then add a cake of softened yeast, two cups of flour, and mix well. Put into a warm place to rise; when light form into loaves and when light, bake.

Lemon Raisin Pie.—This is a delicious pie and one which is not too expensive for occasional use. Take a cupful of large raisins, carefully seeded; add a cupful of granulated sugar, one large lemon rind and juice with the seeds removed, a tablespoonful of flour and a cupful of water. Bake between two crusts.

For the sauce, use a fourth of a cup of butter softened and mixed with a cupful of powdered sugar; flavor with vanilla, and add a half cup of whipped cream. Grated lemon rind may be used instead of vanilla, if so desired.

When putting up a lunch in which sauce is used, crumb a few crackers in the cupful of sauce. They will soak up the surplus juice and take the place of pastry.

WHAT WILL ENGLAND DO WITH MILITANTS?

Failure of "Cat and Mouse" Act Causes Questioning of Stronger Method of Curbing "Wild Women."

London, May 5.—John Bull is fast acquiring chronic insomnia trying to guess the answer to the question, "What shall we do with wild women?" So desperate has he become over the absolute mockery of the law by the "militants" that he is almost—but not quite—persuaded to accept the suggestion now seriously advanced by some eminent men and certainly endorsed by a large section of the public, "Let them die."

The failure of the "Cat and Mouse" act as a cure for militancy has been so thoroughly demonstrated that even Home Secretary McKenna, the architect, has at last begun to realize that sterner methods will have to be adopted. He is not at any loss for advice. Great Britain is notoriously an epistolary nation, and the office of the "chief of police" of the empire is nowadays the favorite target of the ever ready letter writers. The suggestions, which are being received by the hundreds daily, present punishments varying from flogging on the chin to deportation for life.

The recent statistics of window-smashing, dynamiting, etc., by no means indicate how sorely John Bull has been hurt in the tenderest part of his anatomy—his pocketbook. The women have destroyed more than five million dollars' worth of property since they began their crusade of militancy five years ago. This represents only a fraction of the indirect loss in money. Merchants and hotel keepers are complaining bitterly of the falling off of their tourist trade, especially from America. Mary Richardson could not have selected a more opportune time, from the suffragette standpoint, for her meat-axe assault upon the Rokeby Venus in the national gallery. The consequent closing of practically all the famous show places of London—the galleries, museums and palaces, center my interest on my husband's career and my children's education, and read a good, clever bit of fiction when I have time. I do not go in for suffrage, or club work of any kind.

What little I know about national politics I have learned from the senate gallery, listening to speeches and debates. I love society and entertain informally, but not enough to let it interfere with my home life. Could any woman be more old-fashioned these days—housekeeping, marketing, husband and children. It sounds so uneventful that the wildest imagination could never concoct a story from it.

Mrs. Jackson might have added that she keeps house in one of the most beautiful and spacious residences in Washington, with a large retinue of well-trained servants at her command, and by methods that are not exactly "old-fashioned." When she goes to market it is in a big limousine, driven by the most correct chauffeur. Her informal entertaining is planned with a lavish attention that has given her a reputation as a hostess.

Senator and Mrs. Jackson are occupying the Washington home of Mrs. Grant, widow of the late General Frederick Dent Grant. They took the big house furnished. Filled with rare specimens of Japanese art, with rugs from the Orient, with pictures and bric-a-brac purchased by or purchased for the Grants during their travels in many lands, and with fine old furniture which has been in the historic Grant family for three generations, the home is one of the most tasteful and interesting at the capital. Also it is perfectly adapted to entertaining on a generous scale.

Senator and Mrs. Jackson have two children, both of whom attend the Friends' school at Washington. Their names are Elizabeth and William H. The young daughter of the house possesses remarkable musical gifts, in the development of which her mother is greatly interested. She inherits her musical ability from Senator Jackson, who is himself an accomplished pianist.

Women Worth While

MRS. WILLIAM P. JACKSON.

By Selma Armstrong Harmon. "Just an old-fashioned woman," laughed Mrs. William P. Jackson, wife of Senator William P. Jackson of Maryland, "is not not worth while these days, not from the interviewer's standpoint, anyway. Now, I am just an old-fashioned woman. I keep house, go to market, center my interest on my husband's career and my children's education, and read a good, clever bit of fiction when I have time. I do not go in for suffrage, or club work of any kind."

What little I know about national politics I have learned from the senate gallery, listening to speeches and debates. I love society and entertain informally, but not enough to let it interfere with my home life. Could any woman be more old-fashioned these days—housekeeping, marketing, husband and children. It sounds so uneventful that the wildest imagination could never concoct a story from it.

Mrs. Jackson might have added that she keeps house in one of the most beautiful and spacious residences in Washington, with a large retinue of well-trained servants at her command, and by methods that are not exactly "old-fashioned." When she goes to market it is in a big limousine, driven by the most correct chauffeur. Her informal entertaining is planned with a lavish attention that has given her a reputation as a hostess.

Senator and Mrs. Jackson are occupying the Washington home of Mrs. Grant, widow of the late General Frederick Dent Grant. They took the big house furnished. Filled with rare specimens of Japanese art, with rugs from the Orient, with pictures and bric-a-brac purchased by or purchased for the Grants during their travels in many lands, and with fine old furniture which has been in the historic Grant family for three generations, the home is one of the most tasteful and interesting at the capital. Also it is perfectly adapted to entertaining on a generous scale.

Senator and Mrs. Jackson have two children, both of whom attend the Friends' school at Washington. Their names are Elizabeth and William H. The young daughter of the house possesses remarkable musical gifts, in the development of which her mother is greatly interested. She inherits her musical ability from Senator Jackson, who is himself an accomplished pianist.

ECZEMA ITCHED TERRIBLY ON HANDS

White Little Spots. Scratching Made Them Worse. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

1291 Marion Place, Chicago, Ill.—"I had eczema for four or five years. One day I came into the house and saw some white little spots coming out on my hands. A week later I saw that the spots began opening and in their places came deep holes. Later I took the form of some red little spots. Those spots itched so terribly and every night when I was asleep I always used to scratch and make the spots worse and made some new spots. The trouble caused loss of sleep. My hands cost my father a fortune. I used remedies for three and one-half years but they made me worse. I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment twice a day, in the morning and at night before going to sleep. Cuticura Soap and Ointment afforded relief in one or two weeks, and it only took two months before the cure was complete." (Signed) Clement Levinson, Nov. 22, 1912.

Although the Cuticura Soap and Ointment are most successful in the treatment of affections of the skin, scalp, hair and hands, they are also most valuable for everyday use in the toilet, bath and nursery, because they promote and maintain the health of the skin and hair from infancy to age. Sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 25¢ in skin book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

INVADING ARMY WILL SEE BAD ROADS SOON

Failure of Mexican Officials to Keep Up Roads May Cause Slow Passage of Troops Following Rainy Season.

The Laredo to Saltillo road, regarded by army officers as the best in Mexico City, will present unexpected difficulties to an invading army, according to a statement issued by the American Highway Association, clearing house of the road movement in America, at the Washington headquarters today.

Within a few weeks the season for rain will begin in Mexico, and owing to the failure of the officials of that country to maintain their roads, many of the highways will become impassable. There are three routes by which an invading army might enter Mexico, the one starting at Laredo, which avoids the long desert; another by way of El Paso; and the third by way of Eagle Pass.

According to the statement of the American Highway Association, the roads in Mexico are in such bad condition that the moving of artillery over them will be very difficult, especially after the rainy season sets in and the highways become heavy with mud.

With the exception of the valley of Mexico and a few mining regions, there are few improved roads in the state. In most sections they are little better than the unimproved earth either in repair or maintenance, except as is absolutely necessary for immediate traffic.

In the state of Chihuahua, where Caraniza and Villa have political headquarters, a government appropriation amounting to only $1500 in gold each year is made with a view to keeping the roads and bridges in repair. On the haciendas, which in some instances are larger than one of our counties, the necessary roads are crudely maintained by the owners merely for their own convenience.

The laws of Mexico provide that the roads be at least thirty-six feet wide and that they be repaired each year. Failure to comply with these provisions entails a double fine on the offending parties, the fine being paid theoretically, either labor or money.

There is no attempt to enforce this law, and the roads are given little attention.

In Cuba and the Philippines, the first work that was required from the army, after sanitation had been accomplished, was the improvement of the roads. The Philippines had no road system when the American army landed, but now there is a very modern system in the islands.

The advance of civilization, according to the American Highway Association, usually can be gauged by a nation's highways.

RECEIVE PETITIONS FOR OILING STREETS

Councilman Peter Goodman Repairing Streets To Be In Condition For Oil Treatment.

Petitions are being received by the city for the oiling of the dirt streets during the last week and Councilman P. J. Goodman, superintendent of streets, has been making preparations for the work, when favorable weather permits.

Petitions must be received from the residents of all streets, except paved highways, in which the work has already been ordered by the council, whether the streets were oiled last year or not. The council will not consider petitions for oiling of streets, where all the residents have not signed along the streets for distance enough to make the treatment a success. No work will be done where the petition calls for a block of oiling and then skipping a distance of another block on the same street.

The street department employees have been engaged in repairing many of the resident district streets, filling crosswalks and holes with gravel, preparatory to the scraping and brushing before the oiling. All streets which are to be oiled will be thoroughly cleaned and repaired before the oil is applied.

POURING OUT THE WHISKEY

Life's Hopes and Its Opportunities Run Out With the Poison That Men Drink.

On the sloppy surface of any bar you might read spelled out the word—HOPE. Carefully and neatly the bartender with his towel wipes off the bar every minute or two—as he looks at you and your drinking. He is cheerful and pleasant always. He doesn't tell you what he KNOWS. When your hand shakes, and a little of the whiskey is spilled, he smiles, says it is all right, and wipes it off. He has simply wiped off a little spilled whiskey. You have wiped out a little of your remaining hope of success. You can't take hold of that bottle and be as good a man as you were before. Whiskey is a poison and the whiskey drinker poisons himself. Worse than that he poisons his family. He drowns with his own hope, the hope of his wife, his children, his mother, all of those that have a right to depend upon him. From an Editorial in Chicago American.

THE PLACE OF HONEY-MOONS HAROLD MACGRATH Pictures by C.D. RHODES

Half after three, on Wednesday afternoon, Abbott stared moodily at the weather-torn group by Dalou in the Luxembourg gardens—the Triumph of Silenus. His gaze was deceptive, for the rollicking old bibulous scoundrel had not stirred his critical sense nor impressed the delicate films of thought. He was looking through the bronze, into the far-away things. He had arrived early that morning, all the way from Como, to find a thunderbolt driven in at his feet. Across his knees fluttered an open newspaper, the Paris edition of the New York Herald. All that kept it from blowing away was the tense fingers of his right hand; his left hung limply at his side.

It was not possible. Such things did not happen these unromantic days to musical celebrities. She had written that on Monday night she would sing in La Boheme and on Wednesday, Faust. She had since vanished, vanished as completely as though she had taken wings and flown away. It was unreal. She had left the apartment in the Avenue de Wagram on Saturday afternoon, and nothing had been seen or heard of her since. At the last moment they had had to find a substitute for her part in the Puccini opera. The maid testified that her mistress had gone on an errand of mercy. She had not mentioned where, but she had said that she would return in time to dress for dinner, which proved conclusively that something out of the ordinary had befallen her.

The automobile that had carried her away had not been her own, and the chauffeur was unknown. None of the directors at the opera had been notified of any change in the singer's plans. She had disappeared, and they were deeply concerned. Singers were generally erratic, full of sudden indispositions, unaccountable whims; but the Signorina da Toscana was one in a thousand. She never broke an engagement. If she was ill she said so at once; she never left them in doubt until the last moment. Indecision was not one of her characteristics. She was as reliable as the sun. If the directors did not hear definitely from her by noon today, they would have to find another Marguerite.

The police began to move, and they stirred up some curious bits of information. A man had tried to bribe the singer's chauffeur, while she was singing at the Austrian ambassador's. The chauffeur was able to describe the stranger with some accuracy. Then came the bewildering episode in the apartment; the pistol-shot, the flight of the man, the astonished concierge to whom the beautiful American would offer no explanations. The man (who talked with the description given by the chauffeur) had obtained entrance under false representations. He claimed to be an emissary with important instructions from the opera. There was nothing unusual in this; messengers came at all hours, and seldom the same one twice; so the concierge's suspicions had not been aroused. Another item. A tall hand-some Italian had called at eleven o'clock Saturday morning, but the signorina had sent down word that she could not see him. The maid recalled that her mistress had intended to dine that night with the Italian gentleman. His name she did not know, having been with the signorina but two weeks.

Celeste Fournier, the celebrated young pianist and composer, who shared the apartment with the missing prima donna, stated that she hadn't the slightest idea where her friend was. She was certain that misfortune had overtaken her in some inexplicable manner. To implicate the Italian was out of the question. He was well-known to them both. He had arrived again at seven, Saturday, and was very much surprised that the signorina had not yet returned. He had waited till nine, when he left, greatly disappointed. He was the Barone di Monte-Verdi in Calabria, formerly military attaché at the Italian embassy in Berlin. Sunday noon Mademoiselle Fournier had notified the authorities. She did not know, but she felt sure that the blond stranger knew more than anyone else. And here was the end of things. The police found themselves at a standstill. They searched the hotels but without success; the blond stranger could not be found.

Abbott's eyes were not happy and pleasant just now. They were dull and blank with the reaction of the stunning blow. He too, was certain of the Barone. Much as he secretly hated the Italian, he knew him to be a fearless and an honorable man. But who could this blond stranger be who appeared so sinisterly in the two "Leave the Room, or I Will Shoot." scenes? From where had he come? Why had Nora refused to explain about the pistol-shot? Any woman had a perfect right to shoot a man who forced his way into her apartment. Was he one of those mad fools who had fallen in love with her, and had become desperate? Or was it some one she knew and against whom she did not wish to bring any charges? Abducted? And she might be, at this very moment, suffering all sorts of indignities. It was horrible to be so helpless.

The sparkle of the sunlight upon the ferrule of a cane, extending over his shoulder, broke in on his agonizing thoughts. He turned, an angry word on the tip of his tongue. He expected to see some tourist who wanted to be informed.

"Ted Courtland!" He jumped up, overturning the stool. "And where the dickens did you come from? I thought you were in the Orient?"

"Just got back, Abby."

The two shook hands and eyed each other with the appraising scrutiny of friends of long standing.

"You don't change any," said Abbott.

"Nor do you. I've been standing behind you fully two minutes. What were you glooming about? Old Silenus offend you?"

"Have you read the Herald this morning?"

"I never read it nowadays. They are always giving me a roast of some kind. Whatever I do they are bound to misconstrue it." Courtland stooped and righted the stool, but sat down on the grass, his feet in the path. "What's the trouble? Have they been after you?"

Abbott rescued the offending paper and shaking it under his friend's nose, said: "Read that."

Courtland's eyes widened considerably as he absorbed the significance of the heading—"Eleonora da Toscana missing."

"Bah!" he exclaimed. "You say bah?"

"It looks like one of their advertising dodges. I know something about singers," Courtland added. "I engineered a musical comedy once."

"You do not know anything about

"That's true enough." Courtland finished the article, folded the paper and returned it, and began digging in the path with his cane.

"But what I want to know is, who the devil is this mysterious blond stranger?" Abbott flourished the paper again. "I tell you, it's no advertising dodge. She's been abducted. The blond!"

Courtland ceased boring into the earth. "The story says that she refused to explain this blond chap's presence in her room. What do you make of that?"

"Perhaps you think the fellow was her press agent?" was the retort. "Lord, no! But it proves that she knew him, that she did not want the police to find him. At least, not at that moment. Who's the Italian?" suddenly.

"I can vouch for him. He is a gentleman, honorable as the day is long, even if he is hot-headed at times. Count him out of it. It's this unknown, I tell you. Revenge for some imagined slight. It's as plain as the nose on your face."

"How long have you known her?" asked Courtland presently.

"About two years. She's the gem of the whole lot. Gentle, kindly, untouched by flattery. . . . Why, you must have seen and heard her!"

"I have." Courtland stared into the hole he had dug. "Voice like an angel's, with a face like Bellini's donna; and Irish all over. But for all that, you will find that her disappearance will turn out to be a diva's whim. Hang it, Suda, I've had some experience with singers."

"You are a blockhead!" exploded the younger man.

"All right, I am," Courtland laughed. "Come on over to the Bouffes and have a drink with me."

"I'm not drinking today," tersely. "There's too much ahead for me to do."

"Going to start out to find her? Oh, Sir Galahad!" ironically. "Abby, you used to be a sport. I'll wager a hundred against a bottle of pop that tomorrow or next day she'll turn up serenely, with a statement that she was indisposed, sorry not to have notified the directors, and all that. They do it repeatedly every season."

"But an errand of mercy, the strange automobile which cannot be found? The engagement to dine with the baron? Celeste Fournier's statement? You can't get around these things. I tell you, Nora isn't that kind. She's too big in heart and mind to stoop to any such devices," vehemently.

"Nora! That looks pretty serious, Abby. You haven't gone and made a fool of yourself, have you?"

"What do you call making a fool of myself?" truculently.

"You aren't a suitor, are you? An accepted suitor?" unrumpled, rather kindly.

"No, but I would to heaven that I were!" Abbott jammed the newspaper into his pocket and slung the stool over his arm. "Come on over to the studio until I get some money."

"You are really going to start a search?"

"I really am. I'd start one just as quickly for you, if I heard that you had vanished under mysterious circumstances."

"I believe you honestly would."

"You are an old misanthrope. I hope some woman puts the hook into you some day. Where did you pick up the grouch? Some of your dusky princesses give you the go-by?"

"You, too, Abby?"

"Oh, rot! Of course I never believed any of that twaddle. Only, I've got a sore head today. If you knew Nora as well as I do, you'd understand."

Courtland continued toward the exit, his head forward, his gaze bent on the path. He had the air of a man deep in thought, philosophic thought, which leaves the brows unmarred by those corrugations known as frowns. Yet his thoughts were far from philosophic. Indeed, his soul was in mad turmoil. He could have thrown his arms toward the blue sky and cursed aloud the fates that had set this new tangle at his feet. He longed for the jungles and some mad beast to vent his wrath upon. But he gave no sign. He had returned with a purpose as hard and grim as iron; and no obstacle, less powerful than death, should divert or control him. "Abduction." Let the public believe what it might; he held the key to the mystery. She was afraid, and had taken flight. So be it.

"I say, Ted," called out the artist, "what did you mean by saying that you were a Dutchman?"

Courtland paused, so that Abbott might catch up to him. "I said that I was a Dutchman."

"Yes. And it has just occurred to me that you meant something."

"Oh, yes. You were talking of Da Toscana? Let's call her Harrigan, if will save time, and no one will know to whom we refer. You said she was Irish, and that when she said a thing she meant it. My boy, the Irish are notorious for claiming that. They often say it before they see clearly. Now, we Dutchmen—it takes a long time for us to make up our minds, but when we do, something has got to bend or break."

An Every Day Experience

A laddie in the grades of our public schools wanted a baseball outfit. That was a legitimate want, but as there was more children in the family, all in school and the father was not drawing what you might term a banker's salary, the chance of his having the outfit seemed rather slim.

His mother, was a woman who you might truthfully say, "aided and abetted" the children in all their planning. She was a wise little mother, she knew outdoor sports would tend to make of her children assets to their city, state and country, would make of them the right sort of men and women.

They talked over the baseball outfit. He was willing to work before and after school to earn. She ran an ad in her daily paper worded something like this: "Wanted: Yards to clean, any kind of work around your home that a thirteen-year-old boy can do. Work satisfactorily done. Phone 554 green."

Yes, he has his baseball outfit, and he is working steadily before and after school for an elderly couple who were willing and glad to have the services of a bright active boy. He is earning and any one who has raised a boy knows how much that means to him.

You never know until you try just what you can do. This homely bit of philosophy applies to a want ad, as well as to many other things. Ever try one?
